National Automotive Service Task Force

The National Automotive Service Task Force is a cooperative effort among the automotive service industry, the equipment and tool industry, and automotive manufacturers to ensure that automotive service professionals have the information, training, and tools needed to properly diagnose and repair today's high tech vehicles. In order to help identify gaps in the availability of service information, NASTF will accept feedback from service technicians who submit a NASTF Service Information Complaint Form found at www.nastf.org.
